Definitions

Novice classes are open to horses or riders who have never won a similar class at any show or gymkhana

“Championship” classes - will consist of the winners of their respective classes.

“Reserve Champion” – will consist of the winners of their respective classes other than the class or classes from which the Champion was drawn, together with the second prize winners from the class or classes from which the Champion was drawn, may compete for this award.

“Supreme” Classes- consist of all awarded Champions that ring of the day. Horse and Rider Classes separate even though combined in the same ring.

Show Hunters: Horses which are considered hunters differ significantly from open hacks. A hunter horses, therefore, should be a horse with sufficient bone and substance (without being overweight) to give the appearance of being able to carry their rider for a full day's riding over varying, and sometimes rough, terrain. The hunter should be a bold, powerful and strong workhorse comprising quality breeding and exceptional manners. For more information, please see:
